ABOUT BULGARIA

The history of Bulgaria starts with the forming of the First Bulgarian Empire by Asparukh in 681 AD though previously other Bulgarian rulerships existed, but traditionally history of Bulgaria is beginning with Asparukh and union between Bulgars and Slavs at the lands of today's Bulgaria.

In 632 the Bulgars, originally from Central Asia, formed under the leadership of Kubrat an independent state that became known as Great Bulgaria. Its territory extended from the lower course of the Danube to the west, the Black Sea and the Azov Sea to the south, the Kuban River to the east, and the Donets River to the north. Pressure from the Khazars led to the subjugation of Great Bulgaria in the second half of the 7th century. Kubrat's successor, Asparukh, migrated with some of the Bulgar tribes to the lower courses of the rivers Danube, Dniester and Dniepr (known as Ongal), and conquered Moesia and Scythia Minor (Dobrudzha) from the Byzantine Empire, expanding his new kingdom further into the Balkan Peninsula. A peace treaty with Byzantium in 681 and the establishment of the Bulgarian capital of Pliska south of the Danube mark the beginning of the First Bulgarian Empire. (At the same time one of Asparuh's brothers, Kuber, settled with another Bulgar group in present-day FYR Macedonia.)

Bulgarian culture is formed by traditions of the Bulgars and to some extent Thracians, Slavic language and after Christianisation - by Orthodox Christianity, drawing from both Western European cultural traditions (19th, 20th century) and the Eastern, Byzantine and later in 19th and 20th century Russian culture.

The First and Second Bulgarian Empires formed a cultural centre in Slavic Europe with its literary schools and educators which were a major source for Slavic literature and standardization of written literary Old Slavic language.

In political aspect Bulgaria went through radical changes (kingdom, communism and later republic democracy) and lost independence twice in its history, once by the Kievan Rus' and the Byzantine Empire (1018–1185) and once by the Ottoman Empire (1396 - 1878), which introduced many challenges, esp. after the Liberation in 1878. Bulgarian Kingdom after the Liberation was seeking to restore Bulgarian institutions, give place to Bulgarian science and education (where many new models were adopted like education for women), literature (creation of modern Bulgarian literature), standardization of the Modern Bulgarian literary language, etc. During communism Bulgarian state was seeking to improve the economic situation of small towns and villages, and to reduce social class differences that emerged in the monarchy and were partially received by the social differences during the Ottoman rule, education was made economically accessible to all, but entrepreneurship was forbidden, also freedom of speech, and travel to abroad was difficult due to inner restrictions which made Bulgarians eager to abandon communism. After the events at the end of 1989 and early 1990 in the Eastern Europe Bulgaria changed to democratic republic giving place for political pluralism and freedom of speech, and free market economy. In the early 2000s Bulgaria had a government with PM the former king and son of king Boris III - Simeon Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, but monarchist sentiments didn't show strong enough for recovering monarchism, in fact Saxe-Coburg-Gotha's party formed coalition for the next government with the former communist party BSP, and currently Bulgaria is seeking for some neoliberal reforms that to both improve economy and put Bulgaria on the map of the leading in economic, cultural, educational and political aspect countries.
ABOUT PLOVDIV

Plovdiv is one of the oldest cities in Europe. It is claimed that the city is a contemporary of Troy and Mycenae, but it is more ancient than Rome, Athens and Constantinople.

Historians do not indicate the exact age of Plovdiv. In 1975 the remains of a religious building from a Cretan-Mycenaean culture are being revealed, which is equally evaluated with the discoveries in Kronos Island.

Plovdiv is famous with its historical and cultural heritage, which dated back to the Thracian times – the oldest population, for which written sources were found on the Balkan Peninsula. The Thracians had a great culture, which incorporated with other different cultures.

The development of the city is related to the era of Philip of Macedonia. It flourished in the period of heyday of the Roman and Byzantine empires and has preserved to some extent over the years of the Ottoman Empire and reached its rise during the Renaissance.

The ancient history of the city leaves permanent marks in its architecture. Remains of Old World, Middle Ages, Renaissance and modern culture coexist entangled in the irresistable beauty of this eternal city.

Plovdiv has preserved many extremely valuable monuments, of which the most impressive are: the Roman Stadium, the Ancient Theatre, the Odeon, the magnificent colored mosaics, the Aqueduct, the walls, the remains of Thracian settlements.

Nowadays the ancient names of the city are related and interpreted in modern names of tourist facilities – hotels, restaurants, and more.

It is believed that the earliest name of Plovdiv is Kendrisiya / Kendros /. It probably came from the cedar forests for which ancient chroniclers wrote or from Thracian tribe – kandrisi. The Thracians first established a fortified settlement on the Three Hills and called it Evmolpia or Evmolpeida. Some scientists link the origin with the Thracian hero Evmolpus or Vestal Virgins in the temples – Evmolpeya.

In 342 BC Philip II of Macedonia /or his troops/ has conquered the city. This event was followed by another change of the name. The city was named Philippopolis, which means City of Philip. During this period, the village has grown considerably, while becoming one of the starting points of colonizing activity.

At the time of the Roman Emperor Claudius the Empire included the Thracian lands within its borders, and the city became the center of the Roman province Thrace. Again Trimontium (means City of three hills) turned into an important center of economic and cultural life. Here taxes were being gathered, coins were being forged, glamorous buildings, aristocratic homes and impressive walls were being built. Roman era /I-VI century/ is one of the most significant periods of Old World, during which Plovdiv was described as majestic.

During the first half of the seventh century the first massive settlements of the Slavs has begun. They in coexistence with Thracians interpreted the name of the city from Philippopolis to Pulpudeva, then it was transformed into Puldin (Plovdiv) and Plovdiv.

Language

The official language in Bulgaria is Bulgarian. Bulgarian was the first "Slavic" language attested in writing. As Slavic linguistic unity lasted into late antiquity, in the oldest manuscripts this language was initially referred to as языкъ словяньскъ, "the Slavic language". In the Middle Bulgarian period this name was gradually replaced by the name языкъ българьскъ, the "Bulgarian language". In some cases, the name языкъ българьскъ was used not only with regard to the contemporary Middle Bulgarian language of the copyist but also to the period of Old Bulgarian. A most notable example of anachronism is the Service of St. Cyril, a 13th-century Middle Bulgarian manuscript from northern Macedonia according to which St. Cyril preached with "Bulgarian" books among the Moravian Slavs. The first mention of the language as the "Bulgarian language" instead of the "Slavonic language" comes in the work of the Greek clergy of the Bulgarian Archbishopric of Ohrid in the 11th century, for example in the Greek hagiography of by Theophylact of Ohrid (late 11th century).

Alphabet: Cyrillic
In 886 AD, the Bulgarian Empire introduced the Glagolitic alphabet which was devised by the Saints Cyril and Methodius in the 850s. The Glagolitic alphabet was gradually superseded in later centuries by the Cyrillic script, developed around the Preslav Literary School, Bulgaria in the beginning of the 10th century.

Attention: Bulgarians shake their heads from the left to the right to express "YES". However, this stands for "NO" in the rest of the world.

Attention! All electrical appliances work on ~ 220V.

Religion
The Bulgarian Orthodox Church - Bulgarian Patriarchate (Bulgarian: Българска православна църква - Българска патриаршия, Balgarska pravoslavna tsarkva - Balgarska patriarshia) is an autocephalous Eastern Orthodox Church with some 6.5 million members in the Republic of Bulgaria and between 1.5 and 2.0 million members in a number of European countries, the Americas and Australia. The recognition of the autocephalous Bulgarian Patriarchate by the Patriarchate of Constantinople in 927 AD makes the Bulgarian Orthodox Church the oldest autocephalous Slavic Orthodox Church in the world, which was added to the Pentarchy of the original Patriarchates - those of Rome (which became today's Roman Catholic Church after the Schism), Constantinople, Alexandria, Antioch and Jerusalem - and the autocephalous Georgian Catholicosate.

90% of Bulgarian people are Orthodox Christians and celebrate the traditional Christian holidays - Christmas, Easter and the name days of Bulgarians named after Archangels, Saints and Martyrs. About 8% are Muslims and a few are gypsies. As a whole Bulgarian people are very obliging and hospitable.
